Boutique Hotel Feature: Hotel Nikko in San Francisco

February 1, 2016 by Jeanette Valencia

Located steps from Union Square, Hotel Nikko offers travelers an amazing, boutique hotel experience in the heart of San Francisco.

We requested a room on a high floor for a view and were able to get a room on the 19th floor. The photo above was taken from our room.

We recently stayed at Hotel Nikko for a weekend getaway and fell in love with this high-style hotel. Everything from the lobby, to the restaurant within the hotel (Anzu) to the guest rooms are elegantly decorated.

We were surprised to see a bathroom with both a shower and a bath in San Francisco. As you can see from the photo above, even the bathroom has chic-contemporary style!

When we entered our room, we were very happy with the accommodations. The room was spacious, was well appointed and had a Subarashii Yume pillow-top bed (super comfortable).

Adding the breakfast buffet to your stay is a must! It's served at Restaurant ANZU and the spread is fantastic – everything from traditional American breakfast foods, to fresh fruit & fresh squeezed juice, to traditional Asian breakfast foods.

Another uncommon amenity in San Francisco is Hotel Nikko's glass-enclosed indoor swimming pool (one of the city's largest) with a new deck around the pool and hot tub. This area was just renovated!

Hotel Nikko also has a brand new expanded outdoor deck area that features a dog run for furry guests as well as sitting areas with three convivial fire-pits.

Looking to workout during your stay? Club Nikko offers state-of-the-art cardiovascular equipment, free weights, the latest strength machines, and both men's and women's dry saunas and steam rooms.
